John Hopkins University Library
Baltimore, Maryland

Dear Sir:-

The illness of our stenographer has caused us to get somewhat behind in our correspondence. Otherwise I would have replied sooner to your enquiry in regard to the subscription price of the American Journal of Numismatics. The Journal is published annually at the price of $5.00 a year. Back numbers are sold for $5.00 each. Owing to war conditions the 1917 number has only just been published and the 1918 number is still in the hands of the printer, but should be issued shortly.

If you are interested in securing the Journal in the future, might I suggest your library joining our society as an associate member. Our constitution provides for such members and you would then receive the Journal without extra charge, the dues for associate members being the same as the subscription price of the Journal, that is $5.00 per year. The advantage to you would be that as a member you might receive such other publications as we may issue from time to time at the special members price. In addition our own special library of Numismatics would be at your service, while we would gain an affiliation which we would appreciate greatly.

In case this suggestion meets your approval, I am enclosing a membership application card.

Very truly yours,

Secretary

Dear Sirs:

In response to your letter of May 20th, please enter the name of this Library as an Associate in the American Numismatic Society at $5.00 per year, which we understand entitles us to a copy of the Journal without extra charge. We also desire to subscribe to the back volumes beginning with 1914. Please send with bill in duplicate.

Truly yours,

V. B. Mathews

Dear Sir:-

In response to your post card of the 19th telling me you had not received Vol. 13, No. 1, of the American Journal of Mathematics, I would say that my records show that this number was mailed you from Boston on August 10th. Please look into this matter further, and if you find that it has not been received then we will mail you another copy upon notification to that effect.

Dear Sirs:

We have received what is presumably the first issue of Numismatic Notes and Monographs (Coin Hoards by Sydney P. Nos, 1920) as well as your letter of Dec. 10, 1920.

We have been paying you in the past an associate membership fee of $5.00 which covered a subscription to the American Journal of Numismatics, this membership fee having been paid up to and including the year 1921, but the last number we have received of the American Journal of Numismatics is v. 53 pt. 2, 1918, printed in 1920 and received by us in October last. Is this the last number issued? If not, will you kindly see that our set is brought up to date?

It is not clear from your letter of Dec. 10th and the printed announcement inserted in the number of the Numismatic Notes just received whether the American Journal of Numismatics is to be continued or not, or whether it is superseded by the Numismatic Notes and Monographs. Will you kindly enlighten us on this score?

We understand that we are not to receive the Numismatist any longer on our membership in your Society, but that we must subscribe directly if we desire to receive it hereafter.

A prompt response from you in regard to the points above raised will be appreciated.

Awaiting your advice, I remain,

Truly yours,

M. Llewellyn Raney
Librarian.

Dear Madam:

In response to your letter of January 18th, Part 3 of Volume LIII of the Journal has not yet been issued. It will be sent to you as soon as it is ready.

As to the future of the American Journal of Linguistics, I can tell you nothing. Our funds for printing are very limited, and unless we receive support which has not yet materialized it may have to be discontinued.

Our reason for discontinuing the Linguist is because we expect to print our Proceedings, which formerly appeared therein, in the new form of Linguistic Notes and Monographs. These will, in a sense, replace the Journal. Five or six are now in course of preparation and they will be sent out as rapidly as they can be printed; they will be serially numbered although one is intended to be complete.

I trust this will give you the desired information.

Secretary
